

January 15, 2010

William S. May Cooperative Scholarship
Ag Scholarships Awarded

MANHATTAN, Kan. – The William S. May Endowment enhances the educational pursuits of future agricultural leaders with an interest in a career in finance or banking. Kay Albright was selected to be a recipient of the 2009-2010 William S. May Scholarship for Ag Finance for the second year in a row.

Kay Albright of Delia, Kansas, is a senior at Kansas State University, majoring in agribusiness with a minor in animal science. She is a member of Alpha of Clovia and served as Vice President. She also participates in the AgEcon/AgBus Club, National Scholars Honor Society, Alpha Zeta, National Society of Collegiate Scholars and Collegiate 4-H. In addition to school, Kay works as a student assistant at Kansas State University and updates the Livestock and Hay Charts section of www.agmanager.info. She also works as the Education Coordinator for the Jackson Co. Conservation District and as an assistant for Dutch Creek Farms. After graduation, she hopes to work assisting farmers and ranchers to better their operations and also hopes to stay involved with the family farm. Kay and her family are affiliated with Kaw Valley Electric Cooperative, Farmers Union Cooperative Business Association (St. Marys) and Jackson Farmers.

To be eligible for the scholarship, a student must be either a junior or senior in high academic standing in K-State's Department of Agricultural Economics at the time the scholarship is received and must have completed accounting or finance classes. The student must demonstrate an interest in pursuing a career in banking or finance. In addition, the student or their parents must belong to a farmer-owned cooperative.

The awarding of the William S. May Scholarship for Ag Finance is coordinated through the Arthur Capper Cooperative Center (ACCC), directed by Professor David Barton. The ACCC provides research-based information, education and assistance to people with and interested in cooperative businesses, including cooperative members, directors, managers and employees. The Center also works with students and faculty at educational institutions, the general public and public officials as well as owners, directors, managers and employees of agribusinesses.

William S. May was the third of nine children and was raised on a diversified family farm in Oklahoma. He graduated from Oklahoma State University in 1940 and started his long career in agribusiness. In addition, he served 3 years in the South Pacific as a Lieutenant in the Navy. He joined The Federal Land Bank of Wichita in 1956 and worked his way up from Assistant Vice President to President in 1976. He served 5 years until his retirement in 1981. Bill and his wife, Mary Catherine, were married for 61 years and raised two successful children. He was also involved in many community service organizations. His philanthropy included establishing scholarships at 4 universities: Oklahoma

State University; Kansas State University; Colorado State University and New Mexico State University and one through Farm House Foundation. As of 2002, scholarships had been awarded to over 185 students and that number grows each year.

“Additional contributions by those who want to support the purposes of cooperative scholarships are welcome,” Barton said. They should be made payable to “KSU Foundation/ACCC” and sent to the Arthur Capper Cooperative Center, Department of Agricultural Economics, 305 Waters Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS 66506.

Further information can be obtained about this scholarship or about establishing additional scholarships by contacting David Barton at the same address or e-mailing, dbarton@ksu.edu.

-30-

K-State Research and Extension is a short name for the Kansas State University Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service, a program designed to generate and distribute useful knowledge for the well-being of Kansans. Supported by county, state, federal and private funds, the program has county Extension offices, experiment fields, area Extension offices and regional research centers statewide. Its headquarters is on the K-State campus in Manhattan.

K-State Research and Extension is an equal opportunity employer and provider. Kansas State University, County Extension Councils, Extension Districts, and U.S. Department of Agriculture Cooperating.

Arthur Capper Cooperative Center
Agricultural Economics
K-State Research and Extension

ACCCScholar\William S May Press2009

- if using the photo, the photo caption is as follows:

left to right: Kay Albright and Dr. David Barton, ACCC Director, at the K-State Agricultural Economics Awards Banquet, September 25, 2009